Former President Bill Clinton Meets TOMODACHI Youth in Osaka

Feb 04, 2013

February 4, 2013 – Taking time out from his busy schedule, former President Bill Clinton met with young Japanese students at an event in Osaka on February 3 to support the TOMODACHI Initiative. At this informal event, the former President listened to students express their interests and concerns, while encouraging them to pursue their ambitions. The former President was very impressed with the students and remarked, “We are here today to talk about innovation and the future of Japan and the world. If those students I met just now are a representative sample of the young people of Japan, then Japan has a very bright future.”
